DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1 and 6, 7 and 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over SU 1768242.

Art Unit: 3672

Su1768242 discloses an apparatus and method for separating components of a gas stream. The device and method can be used in petroleum industries. The gas stream comes into the device where the stream is forced to flow at supersonic velocity. Blade circulator 2 with axial flaring 3 causes the stream to increase its velocity. This causes the temperature to cool and the liquid condenses and passes through the ring opening into collector 7. While SU1768242 does not specifically disclose the separator being downstream or in a wellhead, it would have been considered obvious to use the separator in conjunction with a wellhead since the device can be used in the petroleum industry and produced gas streams must include a wellhead. It also would have been considered obvious to transport the condensable to the wellhead since the condensable must be transported to some location and transporting the condensable to the wellhead allows disposal of the condensable. As to claim 6, any water present would be removed through the collection chamber. As to claim 9, it would have been considered an obvious design choice to mount the separator at the wellhead. As to claim 10, it would have been considered an obvious design choice to use the device with a branched wellbore. As to claim 11, it would have been obvious to use the device with a submersible pump since submersible pumps are one known form of extraction device.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-5,8 and 12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 13-15 are allowed.
